AIG Engineering Limited recognises that its operations give rise to a range of hazards, in particular its factory-based production and site-based installation activities.

The company believes that despite the presence of these hazards, all accidents and incidents of work-related ill-health are preventable. It also recognises it has a legal responsibility to ensure the health, safety and welfare of persons affected by its activities.

As such, the company is committed to:

- Providing safe and healthy working conditions;
- Preventing injury or ill health to anyone who may be affected by its work activities;
- Complying with all relevant legal, customer and other third-party requirements;
- Eliminating hazards and reducing occupational health and safety risks;
- Continually improving its risk management and occupational health and safety performance;
- Consultation with and the participation of workers and, where relevant, their representatives.

The company will achieve these commitments through the following means:

- The implementation and maintenance of an Occupational Health and Safety Management System, that is independently certified as compliant with ISO 45001:2018;
- The systematic identification of hazards present and the application of a risk assessment procedure that will identify and implement appropriate control measures and safe systems of work;
- The maintenance of a set of objectives and a supporting programme of work that is focussed on achieving its commitments and eliminating or reducing the major hazards present;
 - Worker inclusion from all departments. Consultation sessions will be held every 2 years when Risk Assessments are reviewed, unless otherwise required.
 - To aim to have zero accidents,
 - To comply with applicable legislation,
 - To drive to eliminate, or reduce to an acceptable level, any hazards encountered during the course of operations.
- The clear definition of individual management and employee responsibilities for implementing the Occupational Health and Safety System and achieving the Company's commitments
- The provision of appropriate information, instruction, training and supervision so that all employees:
